Cleven resigns

1st Bank searches for new top executive

by GLORIA DAVIS

When this newspaper received word that Peter Cleven, president of the First National Bank of Antioch and the bank had parted ways as of Friday, July 29, a call was made to the bank for confirmation of the rumor and more information.

Lou Korom, head cashier and junior vice-president of the bank, representing the financial institution, said that the board of directors of the bank was announcing the resignation of Cleven, effective July 29.

"The board is appreciative of Cleven's 12 years of service to the bank and wish him well in any and all new endeavors," Korom said, adding that the bank at the present time was not aware of Cleven's future plans.

Richard Schroeder, spokesman for the board of directors, stated that a search for a new chief executive officer will begin immediately.

Schroeder added that efficient and friendly service to the bank's customers will continue with the board looking forward to a future of aggressive delivery of financial services to the community.

When contacted, Cleven said, "I can't tell you what my future plans are at this point in time, but I enjoyed my 12 years at the bank which is, and will, serve the community well. The bank is in good shape."

Cleven took over as the bank's top executive in August of 1979 upon the resignation of Laverne Woods.

Third supermarket chain to woo Antioch shoppers

by GLORIA DAVIS

For the third time inside of a year, another large supermarket chain will be in business in Antioch.

As of 9 a.m., on Wednesday, August 17, Best Value Foods in the Antioch Shopping Plaza will reopen as a Piggly Wiggly Store.

According to Howard Dickelman, board chairman of Schultz-Sav-O in Sheboygan, Wis., the present store, which closed over last weekend, will reopen in a week and one-half under the new banner that is carried by 11 stores in Racine, Kenosha and Burlington.

The same mother company now operates two supermarkets in Zion and Belvidere under the name Save-U Warehouse Foods.

Dickelman said that his company had taken over the lease with Scot Lad Foods that was formerly held by Best Value Foods Inc., which opened last fall in the old A&P building.

The opening of Best Value was welcomed by the village of Antioch and its residents since the town had been left short of grocery retailers when the Jewel burned and the A&P closed in March of 1982.

A new Jewel-Osco shopping complex opened in the village last spring.

Dickelman added that, besides all major brands, the main brand that will be carried by the new operators will be Food Club, a nationally distributed line of groceries.

Set zoning hearing on 4-unit plans

There will be a public hearing before the Antioch Board of Zoning Appeals at 7:30 p.m., on Wednesday, August 10, at the village hall concerning the zoning change and an annexation request for a lot on Rte. 83 and Windsor Dr.

James R. Harris and lot owner, Margaret Kamin, have asked that the property's zoning be changed to allow the building of a four-unit apartment building.

They have also asked that the property be annexed to the village.

The village board will hold a preannexation hearing on the matter at 7 p.m., on Monday, August 15, at the village hall, before the regular village board meeting.

"We have operated under a total discount premise for 10 years," he said.

"We expect the same great acceptance in Illinois as we have received in Wisconsin," Dickelman said.

He also said that Schultz-Sav-O had been contacted by Scot Lad to take over the lease "which had been available for a year and one-half."

A spokesman for Best Value said that he was unable to comment on the Antioch closing or what effect that closing would have on the Fox Lake Best Value that just opened.

Mother of two dies in car, cycle crash

A 24-year-old Trevor woman, mother of two, who had lived in the Antioch area her entire life, was killed when the motorcycle she was driving crashed head-on into a car at approximately 8 p.m., on Thursday, August 4.

Leila E. Ivey was taken to St. Therese Area Trauma Satellite where she died of chest injuries less than an hour after the accident.

Curtis Bowie, 25, also on the cycle, suffered multiple head and leg fractures and remains in Victory Memorial Hospital, Waukegan.

Ivey was headed south on Rte. 83 and hit a car driven by Pamela Scarlett, 18, Grayslake, while in the process of passing another car.

Angela Guidella, a passenger in the car, was injured by flying glass.

Ivey had no identification on her person but the cycle was traced to Ross Talbert, Trevor, with whom Ivey was reportedly living at the time of the accident.

Neither of the two cyclists was wearing a helmet when the accident happened.

Village levy remains same though 38 % over '82 total

Although the Village of Antioch has a proposed levy for the coming year of $630,000 which shows a 38 percent increase over the property taxes the village actually received last year, the levy remains the same as last year.

The property tax levy last year was $630,000 with a tax rate of 1.136 per $1,000 of property evaluation. This tax rate brought to the village $455,700 in property taxes in 1982.

The proposed levy for 1983 remains the same as in 1982, $630,000, while the village has yet to receive the actual tax rate figures for 1983 from the county and the state after multipliers etc. have been figured.

According to Antioch Village Clerk Marilyn Sterbenz the actual amount the village will expect to receive in property taxes cannot be figured until the tax rate is received.

There will be a public hearing on that proposed levy at 7 p.m., on Tuesday, Sept. 6, at the village hall.

In China, at one time, there were 3,000 rules of conduct to be learned and obeyed.

Fun Day was played at Renwood Country Club by the State Bank of Antioch Womens Golf League and guests on August 4.

A blindfold was used for teeing off hole five and only the highest score recorded. Sophie Thain won the hole six prize for the straightest drive.

A croquet mallet replaced a putter on hole seven with only the lowest score recorded on hole eight. A circle around the cup was the target for hole nine.

Bev Reckers, Joan Casey, Eileen Zannani and Lorraine Blackman were the winning foursome. Betty Mentone, Marge Recupido, Marge Warner and Henrietta Alther took second honors.

Third place winners were Del Scarpelli, Kathy Cirone, Irene Teresi and Lorraine Hitchon. The lowest putting foursome included Mary Hallett, Lou Vos, Elfreda Hansen and Grace Colette.

Liquor bill lays unsigned

State Rep. Bob Churchill (R-Lake Villa) checked with Springfield on Friday, August 5, to see if Gov. James Thompson had signed the revised form of Illinois House Bill 345, which has been laying on his desk for a month awaiting his signature.

As of then, the bill remained unsigned and reports had Thompson in the hospital suffering from leg trouble.

This version of the bill erases the word indirect from the Illinois statute that will then ban only direct connection between municipal board members and the serving or selling of liquor.

Thompson refused to sign a version of the bill in 1980.

Whether or not the word indirect is taken out of the Illinois law is of special interest to two Antioch Village Trustees, Robert Wilton and Mabel Lou Weber.

Wilton's wife is one of the owners of the New Thompson's Restaurants which the village granted a liquor license transfer to recently.

Weber is employed at the Antioch Bowl which also holds a village issued liquor license.

Thompson has just a little over a week to sign the bill, which reportedly must be signed by August 15.

When I think about it

Can rescue teams save effort, time and money?

by GLORIA DAVIS

It is impossible to say too much about the invaluable services given local communities and their residents by the area volunteer fire departments and rescue squads and their devoted selfless members.

And it sure is comforting to know that there are all those volunteers and all those emergency vehicles on call in case of any major or minor catastrophe—BUT my eardrums began rebelling after I attended my sixth seasonal parade.

Talk about noise pollution! Even my kids, who are used to all those rock decibels attacking their eardrums through both earphones, wince when 20 emergency vehicles all let loose with their sirens at top volume.

Wouldn't it be nice if they would all take turns giving a few blasts on their sirens in the order of the parade lineup.

I was very impressed when I saw all those volunteers go into action at a mock disaster drill. It's comforting to know that all that knowledgeable help will be on hand if needed—BUT when I arrive at a scene lit with 17 or 18 whirling lights, all there, tons of equipment and all, because one kid, in one car, hit a telephone pole, I begin to wonder if there isn't some way to more quickly assess the need and save what must be a tremendous amount of money.

When the Trevor Cork Factory and the Antioch Jewel burned, the fast and efficient work of fire departments from both sides of the border most probably stopped a widespread of the destruction—BUT what about the time that 14 squad cars, from two state patrols and sundry municipal police departments, from both Illinois and Wisconsin, lights flashing and sirens blaring, all converged on the arrest scene of a lonely speeder whose car resembled one used in a police shooting the previous day.

I bet that kid, who by the way was not John Dillinger but just your ordinary garden variety speeder, thought he had sped into the set of "Hill Street Blues."

Then there was the time that I happened to be passing a local fire station as every piece of equipment raced out with sirens screaming.

Thinking that this could be the "really big one," old Brenda Starr took up the chase only to meet the fire engines as they were heading back.

The shiny saviours pulled to the side of the road where a meeting was held with the firemen trying to decipher the bad directions given them by the person who made the emergency call.

As this meeting was going on, several pieces of emergency equipment from a neighboring town arrived.

They were just returning from responding to the same call which turned out to be a smoldering mattress.

Now I wouldn't for one moment cast a single aspersion on these people that give so much time and effort to a most necessary and sometimes thankless job—BUT all these departments have quick response records. Isn't there some way to broaden immediate communication so that only the equipment necessary for specific calls would be called to the scene with the others on standby?

Not only would this eliminate what must add up to the needless spending of an appreciable amount of money but this would also cut down the chances of any of the volunteers being hurt while speeding to a scene where they are not even needed.

And by the by, speaking of emergency vehicles rushing to an accident scene, I have been horrified many times lately to hear sirens screaming and see motorists go about business as usual, failing to pull to the side of the road.

It would be fitting that one of these heedless people be the victim as the rescue squad is delayed having to weave in and out of traffic.

I think spare police squad cars should follow the rescue squad sometimes and issue tickets to those that continue on their merry way, turning deaf ears to the siren's squeal.

On the other side of the coin, there are local communities where the volunteers racing to answer calls for help needlessly put themselves and others in added danger.

Something should be done about those blue lights that are on some of the volunteers' private cars. That color of light is almost invisible in the daytime.

The speeding of these cars, in and out of traffic at a motorists rear, with no siren or whistle announcing their approach, could easily cause a greater accident than the one they are rushing to.

And for the volunteers' sake, they sometimes throw caution to the winds in their zeal to save.

I once saw one of them miss getting hit by a train by seconds as they sped across railroad tracks to get to the fire station.

Regardless, here's to the men who ride in the red, or white or yellow trucks, their worth exceeds 10 times a million bucks!!!!

Albert A. Bucar, O.D., represented the American Optometric Assn. at the inauguration of Boyd B. Banwell, O.D., as the third president of Illinois College of Optometry in Chicago, May 14 and 15.

Dr. Bucar, president-elect of the AOA, is a 1955 alumnus of ICO. He previously served as AOA secretary-treasurer and as president of the Illinois Optometric Assn.

Banwell officially assumed office amid a weekend of festivities including the first College-sponsored educational symposium, a continuing education seminar, class reunions and a gala dinner/dance.

Gerald R. Ford, former president of the United States, highlighted the inaugural ceremony as the featured speaker.

Optometric educators, state association leaders, faculty and students discussed critical issues facing the profession at a symposium entitled "Focusing in the 90s." Concurrently, more than 70 optometrists earned four hours of continuing education credit at a presentation by Louis J. Catania, O.D., director of the Pennsylvania College of Optometry's Center for Continuing and Postgraduate Education.

Shag Bark 'dog's life' really a great one!

by GLORIA DAVIS

Richard Mulder's first interest in training dogs came when he was serving as a policeman with the Chicago Police Force back in the 1960's. Mulder, who was a Chicago cop for 12 years, got into K-9 training when that police department first began such a program.

Today he works for the State of Illinois and he and his wife, Betty, and their two grown sons, Jeff and Rich, all are involved in the operation of Shag Bark Corners, a new kennel and dog training school located one-fourth-of-a-mile east of Deep Lake Rd., between Lindenhurst and Antioch.

Besides a kennel capacity of 12 animals, the Mulders will give dogs obedience and attack training.

Although Mulder has trained attack dogs for detective agencies and area police departments, he said that "a good dog that is well trained will love children and people."

He and his sons have built an obstacle course, and the beautiful kennels, as well as put in a lovely man-made pond that is well stocked with fish.

When I visited Shag Bark Corners to take pictures of Mulder's two extremely well-trained German Shepherds, Nadia and Tatoo, as they ran the obstacle course and instantly obeyed Mulder's commands, I didn't expect to witness a performance by trained fish.

Mulder stood at the edge of the pond and whistled and hundreds of wakes suddenly rippled through the water as the fish swam to the spot where he stood to answer his call.

He later admitted that he used the same whistle when he fed the fish.

Nadia is obedience trained and Tatoo is trained to attack, both obey voice and hand commands, as do all Mulder-trained dogs.

He explained the necessity for both, anticipating a situation where a voice command might be unwise or impossible.

One of the prettiest sights I have ever photographed was the fluidity of movement as both shepherds, with their collars hooked together, sailed through and over the obstacles on the course together.

The entire Mulder family gets into the "dog" act as well as the expert breeding of German Shepherds.

Mulder said that Shag Bark Corners has often been referred to as "The Country Club Kennels," a name justified by the picturesque grounds and the neat luxuriousness of the kennels.

If this is a "dog's life," make mine Rival!
